

Tenure-Clock Schedule for Faculty Hired at the Rank of Associate Professor

Office of the Provost | University of South Carolina

The following schedule includes the ordinary probationary tenure and promotion cycle, as well as extended probationary periods for up to the maximum of three tenure-clock extensions for faculty hired at the rank of Associate Professor. Faculty hired at the rank of Assistant Professor have a different cycle and should consult the appropriate schedule for their rank. Please note that this tenure-clock schedule is a guide only. The Faculty Manual is the final authority on tenure and promotion policies and procedures. Candidates and those involved in faculty evaluations should also refer to the UCTP Guidelines for Units: Preparing Criteria and Files, for guidance on preparing tenure and promotion files.

Tenure-Progress Review

Local units determine the cycle for the tenure-progress review, which may therefore occur in the fall or spring semester. Candidates with January 1 and August 16 tenure start dates will follow the same calendar. For details, please refer to policy ACAF 1.05: Tenure Progress Review of Faculty: Third-Year Review.

Tenure Decision Year

The tenure and promotion decision year may also be referred to as the penultimate year. Typically for an assistant professor, that is the sixth year in the seven-year probationary period; for an associate professor, typically that is year five of a six-year probationary period. Tenure-clock extensions may extend the penultimate year, and candidates must submit tenure files in the decision year. For faculty with a tenure start date of August 16, the decision year is an academic year; candidates typically submit a tenure file in the fall cycle and receive a decision in the spring/early summer. For faculty with a tenure start date of January 1, however, the decision year is a calendar year; candidates typically submit files in January in the spring cycle and receive a decision in December.

Tenure-Clock Extensions

Tenure-Clock Extensions must be approved by the Office of the Provost. The maximum probationary period may not be extended more than three times. Additionally, a faculty member's probationary term of appointment may not exceed ten years. For details, please refer to policy ACAF 1.31: Extension of Faculty Tenure-Track Probationary Period and Scheduled Post-Tenure Review. Tenure-clock extensions are a separate action from modified duties, which are approved by the college or school. Please see policy ACAF 1.60: Modified Duties for Faculty for additional information.

Automatic COVID-19 Tenure-Clock Extensions

In 2020 in response to the pandemic, the provost announced that all pre-tenure faculty with fewer than three previously approved tenure-clock extensions were automatically granted a tenure-clock extension and extension of the tenure progress review. Candidates may choose to proceed with their original tenure-clock schedule without the COVID-19 automatic one-year tenure-progress review and tenure-clock extensions if desired. If a candidate wishes to proceed with the original tenure-progress review schedule, the candidate may then also elect to proceed on the original tenure-review schedule; however, the candidate's penultimate year will still be the COVID-19 extended decision date. Consult the Office of the Provost's tenure and promotion website for the COVID-19 Impact on Faculty statements issued in 2020 and 2021 for more information.
